

IONIAN ISLANDS ANTIPAXOS

The epitome of seclusion, with only 50 local inhabitants, Antipaxos provides glorious sandy beaches and crystal waters. With only four tavernas, the ethos here is quality rather than quantity.

With an area of a mere five square kilometres and a population of about 50 people, Antipaxos clearly belongs to a world distinct and apart from our usual daily lives. It may have in its history one of the greatest naval battles between the Greek City states of Corinth and Corfu in 432BC but today it prefers to offer those who relish nature's simplicity an unique escape to some of the best soft sand beaches and clearest water in the Mediterranean.

An undulating interior of hillsides, carpeted by maquis, contains small vineyards above beaches of sand and pebble. A network of narrow tracks lead from the small harbour of Agrapidia up to the interior and past the occasional cottage with gardens of fruit trees, vegetables and vineyards. Pathways, bordered by large bulbs of sea squill and wild herbs, lead down on the east coast to the sandy bays of Voutoumi and Vrika with their chalk-blue waters.

There are four tavernas but no shops on Antipaxos. One of the tavernas, overlooking Voutoumi beach, will usually remain open at night on request from June to September. We recommend that we arrange a substantial hamper of provisions for your arrival – to last two days. Clients can contact our Paxos office to order further supplies, which will usually be delivered the next day for a small charge payable locally. From the end of May an “Express Boat” travels between Paxos and two of the Antipaxos sandy beaches. The journey takes twenty minutes and mobile phone contact with our Paxos office will determine the exact time that the boat arrives on Antipaxos. This service can be used by our Antipaxos clients to do their own shopping on Paxos. Bacchus House has a freezer, mobile telephone to contact our Paxos office, torch, games, DVDs and books on fauna and flora. The island is small but distances are deceptive and in parts the tracks are steep and uneven: good walking shoes are recommended.

COLLECTION

Imagine a cosy cottage set on top of a Greek island with soothing winds and heart-stopping views out to crystal-clear water. That's Bacchus House, a one-of-a-kind villa for two on the east coast of Antipaxos. Here, you've got complete privacy and the ultimate escape from the hustle and bustle of daily life. Its charming atmosphere makes it a popular honeymoon destination, as well as a romantic getaway option for couples wanting to recharge and reconnect.

Inside the villa, snuggle up in the double bedroom or share a drink on the terrace that faces the sea. On a warm day, dip your feet in the swimming pool or spread out on a beach towel to soak up the sun. Make it a date night and rustle up a romantic dinner to enjoy in the quaint dining area, or just enjoy some quiet time relaxing with a book.

You can plan your days on a whim here. Check out one of the tavernas or run your toes through the sand at the picture-perfect beaches nearby.
